Motivation for candidacy

Since 2001, we (my colleague, supervisor and trainer Milan Kinkor and me) have been developing trainings in reflective supervision based on values - that means on ethics. Since 2011, I have been active in the Board of ethics of Czech-Moravian Psychological Society and co-created its new form, including code of ethics based on relational ethics. In the years 2013-2022, I was a member of the EFPA's Board of ethics.

I would like to use my experience in the EASC context. I am interested in possible application of relational ethics and its connection to the contemporary world of diversity, equity and inclusion.
